

ken his Master's Degree at Harvard College. The records of Harvard College tell us the exact sum realized by the sale of Brazeletto Wood—£124.

The gift was a very generous one for that time, when £100 was the salary of the President of Harvard College. It was the largest single donation they had yet received, excepting the original grant from the General Court of £400 and John Harvard's legacy of £800.

So it came about that out of the sorrows of the search for freedom for the Elutherian Adventurers, the largest single sum (except John Harbard's bequest) received by Harvard College during the first thirty years of its History, was sent from Eleuthera, Bahamas.

Note.—We hope that the day is not far distant when a memorial will be erected at Eleuthera in honour of the acquaintance of Harvard's Ancient University, America, with Eleuthera.
